Dedication

In gratitude, we, the graduating class of 1967, do hereby dedicate this, our yearbook, the final issue of the Georgetown Bearcat, to the Alumni of Georgetown High School, the graduates of yesteryear.

To our sponsors, Miss Hall and Mr. Mardis, for their everlasting patience, for their deep understanding, and for the giving of their time and talent which they have so willingly and freely extended to us during the past four years, we, with sincere appreciation, dedicate this book.

It is the hope of the 1967 Seniors that, as you glance through this book in years to come, you will recapture those moments spent in G. H. S. and the echoes will begin again.

G.H.S. Memories

In the one-room rural elementary schools of Georgetown Township - seven in number - the education of the youth of the community had its beginning. The students attended the grade school for eight years. For many this terminated their formal education. Others, after graduating from the eighth grade, returned to their grade school and with the help of the teacher were able to glean much to enrich their grade school experience. Still others, desirous of continuing their education beyond the grade level, would commute by train to the New Albany High School. This daily trek, a distance of fifteen miles - necessitated leaving Georgetown about 6:00 A. M. and returning at approximately 5:00 P. M. Among these were Sherman Minton, former Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States.

The young people were at a great disadvantage on account of having no high school in the community, and to take the four-year course in New Albany meant the expenditure of two hundred and fifty dollars for railroad fare and incidentals, none of which purchased one cent's worth of education.

The civic minded citizens of Georgetown, vitally interested in the welfare of their children, fostered an educational movement and envisioned a high school in their community. This would give students a better opportunity to prepare themselves for future security.

Georgetown - town people organized their first high school which began operation in the fall of 1912 with Mr. Millard Tyler as principal, in which capacity he served for six and a half years. This school served the region of Georgetown and Franklin Townships, parts of Greenville and Lafayette Townships, and sections of Harrison County. There was no tuition charged, and anyone in the area was eligible to attend.

G. H. S. was first housed in the No. 8 school located on Kepley Road. They remained there for two years. In September 1914, the high school was housed in the Old Georgetown elementary school which later became the Odd Fellows building. They remained there for one and a half years. In January 1916, the new high school was completed and dedicated, and at midterm the high school students moved into the new building.

The first and second year curriculum consisted of Latin, Algebra, English, Literature, Rhetoric and Composition, American History, Medieval History, and Ancient History. In the third year, Botany replaced Ancient History, and Geometry replaced Algebra. In the fourth year, agriculture was offered to the boys and domestic science to the girls. This was also their first year for debates. The next year Commercial Arithmetic, and German were added.

FIRST GEORGETOWN HIGH SCHOOL - 1912

The new high school building at Georgetown, Indiana was dedicated Saturday, January 29, 1916. An all day program was held in the new building with a large attendance despite a steady downpour of rain. A parade, led by the Georgetown town band was planned but because of the rain the parade was called off. Four high school students were members of this band. Music was furnished by the Georgetown quintet; Irma Clipp, Louisa (Rush) Bobbitt, Alma Taylor, Georgia (Clipp) Crosby, and Allie (Ray) Oster.

After the invocation by the Rev. Arthur Jean, Mr. J. B. Teaford in a brief address presented the school a large American flag. In his inspiring address he voiced the sentiments and enthusiasm of the educational movement in the community. The subject of patriotism was ably presented by Prof. Isaac Murphy of Greenville Township.

At noon a sumptuous dinner was served in the basement on a fifty foot table. More than one hundred partook of the dinner.

The dedication address was delivered by the Rev. O. C. Taylor. In his subject, "The Open Door," he presented the theme showing that the new high school is the open door for the youth of this community. At the close of the address, a vote of thanks was given to the faithful school board and other town officials who, with the almost unanimous support of the town people and with money obtained from the township outside the corporate limits, had reached the climax of the dedication of the magnificent new building. A large bouquet of white carnations was presented to "Uncle Jim" Keithley who donated two acres of land as a building site for the new Georgetown High School.

Mr. J. B. Teaford in his address on "Patriotism" had these comments to make in regard to the desires, struggles, and final achievement of the new school building:

> "The first great difficulty to be encountered was that of finances, which became very embarrassing, and with the phenominal advance in the price of land as each of the several locations was proposed, it seemed for a while we would not be able to purchase a location and have enough left for the erection of a building. But about that time, good fortune for the first time seemed to smile with favor upon the proposition when that grand old patriarch of our town, Uncle Jim Keithley, from the depths of his big and generous heart made a free will donation of this beautiful building site. Then the way began to clear, and actual work on the building proper began when our school board and others came upon these grounds and staked off the ground plan of this building. But as soon as this action became generally known, a perfect storm of criticism arose, and report went abroad that these gentlemen hitherto considered safe and sane had actually been so foolish as to locate this building in a frog pond, and they argued that since the laws of Indiana would not permit a school building within a hundred miles (or some other great distance) of a pond on this account it was condemned as a complete failure, notwithstanding it saved us $300 in excavation.

Friends, in order to convince you of these criticisms and the flimsiness of the argument set forth by these would-be critics, you have only to make examination of this building throughout its several apartments from the basement to the belfry, and in doing so you will see the strength in the materials that have entered into its construction, you will behold the wisdom of the architect in its design, and it is a beautiful to look upon, its foundation is level, its walls are perpendicular and its corners are right angles, and in particular, conforms to the plans as laid down by the architect, and is a suitable structure for dedication to the noble cause of education.

And what became of that disreputable pond? it is no where in sight. My, friends, that same depression in the earth's surface years gone by may have been the scene of the savage war dance, or the hiding place of the wild beasts that infested this country at that time, but for which we, today, have no fear or terror for they have long since disappeared before the onward march of civilization. And so it is with the pond, gone forever and never again will be heard the shrill chirping of the water lizard or the doleful croaking of the bull frog, but instead will be heard the voices of happy children upon these play grounds, or the mingling of their sweet voices in patriotic song at the morning sessions, under the protecting folds of the star spangled banner, the flag of our country. Long may it wave, long live our High School.

Like the beautiful pond, lily white, rooted in the mire and the slime, it lifts its head in pride ro the morning sun, so has this magnificent building risen above the slime and filth of human selfishness, and stands today a monument in honor of every one who has in any way whatever assisted in bringing it about whether by the donation of land or money or by services rendered, or even by a kindly word spoken in its favor--a monument, my friends, more honorable and vastly more important than any shaft of marble or granite you could have erected.

To you, prospective students, soon to occupy this building, we wish to say that you can best show your appreciation for this great work wrought in your favor by a close application to your studies, improve every moment of your school days, be obedient at home and at school, learn discipline and practice it with the assurance that if you do not learn it at home at school you may have to learn it later in the penitentiary or in the army, for you cannot be a good citizen unless you are obedient to the laws of the land in which you live. Be especially careful as to what you read, waste no time on literature that is not elevating in its character and pure and clean in its wording. Study history that you may assist your country in avoiding the mistakes made by others, and study the liberal arts and sciences not with a view of destroying your fellow man by the thousand, but in order to add to his comfort and happiness and if possible add to the average life of man some few years rather than shortening it, and if in this you succeed your name shall go down in history more honored than the names of the inventors of the 42-centimeter gun of Europe, the terrible Zeppelin of the air, or the deadly submarine of the under sea.

Much of the success of the school was due to the first principal and professor, Mr. Millard Tyler, who was well-prepared for this position. Mr. Tyler was a native of Bymville where he received his first education in a one-room school. He started teaching in a one-room school southeast of Georgetown before he went to Indiana State Normal School at Terre Haute from which school he was graduated in 1894. He had fifteen years of teaching experience in Terre Haute as principal of a grade school and of Wiley High School, and three years experience at Centerville, Indiana. During this time he furthered his education by attending Indiana University from which he was graduated with a degree in 1907.

In 1912 he returned to Georgetown and became the first principal and only teacher of the newly organized Georgetown High School. The first class was comprised of eighteen students in the eighth and ninth grades.

In his address on "Patriotism", Mr. J. B. Teaford had this to say of Professor Tyler:

MR. MILLARD TYLER

> "To Professor Tyler, or Millard, as I prefer to address him, my old time chum and schoolmate of 30 odd years ago, we desire to express to you our appreciation for your services in helping to bring about this great enterprise and also for the able manner in which you have conducted our schools during the past several years, and to assure you that we are especially glad to install you as the head of our now greater school system."

In 1914 Miss Vinco Moore was added to the faculty and remained for one year, in 1915 Miss Dewees became a member of the faculty. In 1916 the faculty increased--consisting of Mr. Tyler, Miss Edna N. Swindell, and Miss Irene Graybrook.

In 1916 athletics was introduced into the high school. There was a basketball floor in the basement. There was room for spectators to stand around the side--one person deep. When the weather was suitable, they played outdoors.

In 1915-1916 a commission was applied for but was not forthcoming until the spring of 1917 when a certified commission was granted. In 1917 the first yearbook, The Echo, was edited. Mr. Tyler, having seen two senior classes graduate and the school receive its commission, resigned at mid-term, January 1918. His unexpired term was filled by Mrs. Mae Baker Norman. She remained one full year, 1918-1919. Mr. Wheeler served as principal during the school year, 1919-1920.

Georgetown, because of the increased enrollment and increased expenses, was no longer able to maintain the high school. From Floyd County Records, Deed Book #74, page 337, we read:

> "The School Board of Georgetown "town" deeded to Georgetown Township, Real Estate in the town of Georgetown, one acre of ground and school supplies. Dated September 24, 1920.
> Signed by: Joseph R. Clipp:
> Robert A. Kelly: Georgetown School Board
> Lawrence G. Tyler:

At the time of this transaction, Mr. Charles Rippy was Township Trustee. Mr. Glen V. Scott was the county superintendent of Floyd County Schools. He became superintendent in 1911, and ably served the county school system for 38 years. Mr. G. F. Baudeen was the principal of Georgetown High School during the school year of 1920-1921, the first year that Georgetown High School was a part of the Floyd County School system. Mr. Oscar Crosby served as principal from 1921-1925. The first school paper, "G.H.S. Journal" was published in January, 1922, by the class of 1923. The printing was done by the New Albany Ledger.

Crowded conditions due to increased enrollment, the smallness of the gymnasium, the absence of a suitable place to play baseball and other outdoor games, the recognized need for a library to meet the requirements of outside reading and reference work, among other things necessitated the building of a new high school to meet these many demands. This new school was completed and ready for occupancy in 1925, the site of the present building.

GEORGETOWN HIGH SCHOOL - 1925

As interest in athletics mounted, athletics became an essential part of the high school curriculum. With the organization of girls' and boys' teams, an urgent need for a better place to practice and play games arose. The games were played outside by both girls and boys when the weather was suitable. Both teams had uniforms.

More and more, recognition was given to sports, and the demand for a gymnasium that would provide adequate space for both players and spectators was deemed necessary.

In 1934 a gymnaisum was added to the 1925 structore. There was a regulation playing floor, adequate seating capacity for spectators, and a stage at one end of the gymnasium which made provisions for community meetings and other school activities.

In the early 1940's, the school began to print a yearbook, "The Broadcast." The school has printed a yearbook continuously from 1945 to the present time. In 1958 the name of the yearbook was changed from the "Broadcast" to "The Bearcat."

The long-awaited gymnasium building came into being in 1951. In its wake Mr. Moore became the principal of Georgetown High School in 1952 and has served in that capacity to the present time. He has been an integral part of the many achievements of the Georgetown School. Continuing his invaluable service to the New Albany-Floyd County School system, he will be the first principal of the new Floyd Central High School.

In 1956 the old gymnasium, which had been added to G.H.S. in 1934, was converted to classrooms, and an upper floor, including classrooms, band room, science laboratory, and the library was added.

The Floyd County Schools merged with the New Albany City schools in July, 1956. The new school system, consisting of all schools in Floyd County, became known as the New Albany-Floyd County Consolidated School Corporation and is under the same school superintendent and school board.

The Georgetown-Edwardsville Schools, having satisfactorily met the standards presented by the State Board of Education, attained a much coveted goal when the continuous commission, which had been in force for many years, was replaced by a First-Class Commission granted grades 1-12 on March 11, 1966.

The new 148,000 square-foot Floyd Central High School has many innovations, including a sunken dining room made even more attractive with four chandeliers, each holding 18 light bulbs, supplementing the light given off by flourescent panels in the ceiling. Round and square tables will be placed informally on the three-tiered floor of the dining area. This area may also be used for Theater-in-the-round productions.

Other features of the $2.8 million school includes a swimming pool, carpeting in academic areas, a planetarium, windowless classrooms, and air-conditioning. Windowless rooms were built as an economy measure. This made air-conditioning necessary. The planetarium doubles as a classroom. It will seat 60 students. A 3,000 seat gymnasium, which will eventually seat 3,800, will double as an auditorium. It has a stage 30 feet by 40 feet.

Students at Georgetown High School and Junior High will attend Floyd Central next year, along with some county residents who now attend Scribner Junior High and New Albany High School.

Although Georgetown High School still follows an academic curriculum, other fields of endeavor have been added. In addition to its college preparatory courses, Georgetown now offers courses in vocational business, as well as, general educational fields.

The Seniors were highly honored and take this opportunity to acknowledge the receipt of a telegram of congratulations from Lyndon B. Johnson, the President of the United States.

The telegram reads:

TO THE GRADUATING CLASS
GEORGETOWN SCHOOL, 1967

Please accept my warm congratulations upon you successful completion of high school. I know the pride your families and friends feel on this occasion, and I share it.

You and I cherish the same American ideals--ever larger freedoms, ever brighter opportunity for individual fulfillment for our citizens and for all mankind. We share the continuing task of perpertuating these ideals and translating them into reality. It is not my job alone, nor yours alone. It is ours together.

No one realizes more than your President that success will depend in large measure upon the priceless legacy you carry away from these halls: the knowledge you have won here; the stronger and more certain faith in yourselves that has been born here.

I want you to know that there is no finer contribution you can make for your country than to continue your adventure in education.

In this era of growing complexity and advancing technology, our country can remain strong and prosperous only when each young American acquires all the education he can possibly absorb.

You have my every best wish for a lifetime of success and achievement.

Sincerely,

Lyndon B. Johnson

United States Senator Birch Bayh extended to Mr. Moore congratulations upon his becoming principal of the new Floyd Central High School which opens in September, 1967. The congratulatory message follows.

LAWRENCE MOORE

It is a pleasure to join with so many of your friends in congratulating you on your appointment as principal of Floyd Central High School.

Let me also congratulate you on a job extremely well done at Georgetown.

Best wishes for continued success in the days ahead.

Birch Bayh

United States Senator
